

Did Dr. Frankenstein do a good or bad thing?

Dr. Victor Frankenstein is a male doctor. His interest in science, chemistry, and the differences between life and death.

Dr. Victor Frankenstein wants to find a way to almost cheat death and that is what he did with his creature.

Dr. Frankenstein stitched together various body parts and is amazed when the creature comes to life, but then he suddenly regrets it because it is horrifying.

Victor abandoned the creature and left him somewhere. The creature is roaming wherever he goes. The creature is not accepted by anyone so he seeks revenge on humans.

The creature is very dangerous and just wants someone to accept him, he sees William Frankenstein in the woods and he thinks he might accept him. William threatens the creature with his father.

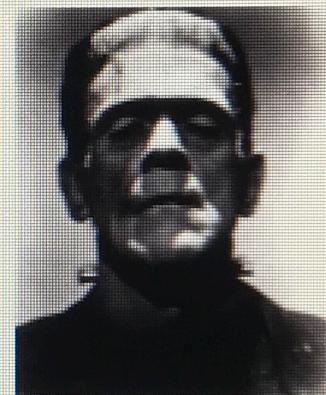

Frankenstein knows the creature killed his brother?

Victor Frankenstein quickly realizes that it was the creature that killed his brother William. Everyone thinks that it was Justine. Justine slept in a barn on the night of the murder and the creature slips a locket with a picture of Williams mother into Justines pocket. She is framed for the murder even though Victor knows it was the creature.

Justine goes to jail and Victor goes to visit her and he tells her she is innocent. Victor always believes in her and that she did not commit the crime.

At the trial she confesses to the murder even though she is innocent. Victor could have confessed to creating the monster but he did not.

Another Creature?

The creature blames Victor for everything but he says that if he creates him a mate he will be happy. The creature is lonely. Victor at first tells the creature no but then he starts making the creature. He stops making it and the creature tells him that he will seek revenge on his wedding night. Victor made the right decision not making the creature a mate but he could have just shown the creature love.

Many deaths were caused by the creature which you could very easily only blame him but Victor is at blame too. Victor might not be the actual one that killed all of the people but he created the creature. When he abandoned the creature he left him alone with no training. The creature cares but he seeks revenge. Victor made the right decision not making a mate but he could have just shown love or attention to the creature.
